Georgia Tech, Centre College and University of Alabama Have Kept Opponents at Bay in Games That Have Been Played Thus Far-Commodores Eliminated.

BY BOB PIGUE.

Three big Dixie elevens—Georgia Tech, Centre College and the University of Alabama—have yet to be scored upon by the opponents they have encountered thus far in their 1920 schedules. Centre leads the procession when it comes to scoring points, having piled up a total of 241 while holding their rivals scoreless. Alabama has scored does of 1917, when they went like a catapult over all opponents.

Although John Heisman, who made Georiga Tech famous, is no longer coaching the Jackets, much of the Heisman brand of football still remains, for many men who were on the team when Heisman was present have absorbed a vast amount of that great mentor's knowledge of the gridinon game, and have been of a great help to the new coaches in putting the Golden Tornado back in the running for Southern championship honors.

In Saturday's Tech-Vandy game at Nashville, the Yellow Jackets showed an attack that is going to prove hard for other teams to stop before the season ends. Not only did they show a strong offensive, but their defensive play was all that it should have been, which is shown in the final score, which reveals the fact that the Commodores failed to oss Tech's goal line.

MEET PITTSY SATURDAY.

Georgia Tech has the biggest assignment of the year ahead of her for next Saturday, when she goes to Pittsburgh to meet Glenn Warner's Pitt team, which has become one of the features of the grid season. Tech is anxious to wipe out the stain of defeat that was administered on the occasion of their last invasion of the Smoky City, and the Golden Tornado is already gathering momentum for the big task ahead of it.

Tech has always given the Pitt Panthers a battle, but the Pitts-burghers have proven too big a bite for the Yellow Jackets to assimilate. However, the long lane is due for a turn, and the Jackets are confident they will have the hide of the Panthers nailed to their cabins when they return to Dixieland next Sunday. Dixieland next Sunday.

The Atlantans have another big jo ahead of them on Oct. 30, when they tackle Centre college in Atlanta.

This should be a whale of a game, and grid fans from all over the country are going to see the two premier Dixie teams in action.
